Microsoft CanadaInterview: Patricia MacInnis, Editor, Computing Canada

A question I often get is, "How can I progress career-wise and stay ahead?" Invariably, a good strategy is to keep informed.

To help you, I am sharing an interview I did this week with Computing Canada (CC) Editor Patricia MacInnis, a leading and respected voice in the Canadian computing scene.

Patricia provides insights into these topic areas:

1. Top news items for IT managers in 2005 that are continuing for the future
2. Priorities for IT managers in the past and in 2006
3. Issues to be addressed at the executive roundtable at the CIPS INFORMATICS conference held in Victoria, May 28th to May 30th
4. Major predictions of future trends, their implications and business opportunities
5. Recommended resources for IT managers
6. Career events that were turning points; current challenges and goals
7. Working life as the CC editor
8. Editorial snapshots of coming features important to IT managers
9. Hot topics generating the greatest feedback
10. Big issues facing print publications

I invite you to provide comments here or via e-mail, sibaraki@cips.ca

Thank you,

Stephen Ibaraki
